Zinfandel 2013

Zinfandel, though grown in the Pacific Northwest since its pioneer days, is a relative newcomer to wine shop shelves. The style of our Zinfandel is lean, more akin to Zinfandel's cousin, Primitivo, which is grown in Italy's Puglia region – opposite of the big, jammy styles you see coming from California. Growing above the Columbia River on sunny, south-facing slopes, this terroir is ideal for a medium-bodied wine that is mouth-filling with a rustic edge. The clear, ruby-purple color of the wine enhances the black pepper and raspberry aromas. On the palate, our dry and tangy Zin has tantalizingly sweet flavors of roasted cherries and raspberry candy.
